

Julianna's Wish

Julianna's Wish is a non-profit organization that is helping families in Fairfield County of Ohio effected by Prader-Willi Syndrome (PWS), along with educating others about PWS.

About PWS:

Prader-Willi Syndrome (PWS) is a rare genetic disorder characterized by:

- Cognitive problems.
- Short stature.
- Decreased muscle tone.
- Mood swings.
- Chronic hunger, which can lead to excessive eating and life-threatening obesity. An insatiable appetite that they cannot learn to control because of a dysfunction of the hypothalamus region in the brain.
- Causes rapid weight gain on few calories because of a malfunctioning metabolic system. Therefore a closely monitored diet must be maintained to restrict calorie intake.
- Ironically, babies typically show no interest in eating and have difficulty sucking, breathing and swallowing. This is known as "failure to thrive" stage.
- Children as young as three have died of weight related problems. These problems are life threatening and include perforation in the lining in the stomach from sudden eating binges.

It is estimated that PWS affects one in 12,000 to 15,000 births. It often goes misdiagnosed. This syndrome affects both males and females and all ethnic groups. Currently, there is no cure and no medications or procedures are successful in staving off the relentless hunger.

With your help, we can make Julianna's Wish come true!
